What is Domestic Violence?

Domestic Violence is a behavior where one person tries to gain POWER and CONTROL over another person.

Isolation: Preventing you from seeing your family & friends; not allowing you to learn English.

Economic Abuse: Having complete control over money; threatening to report you if you “work under the table”. Try to get you fired or threaten to reveal your documentation status in an attempt to isolate and control your ability to work.

Verbal, Emotional, Psychological Abuse: Calling you names; putting you down or embarrassing you in front of others; criticizing your abilities as a partner &/or a parent; making you afraid with a look; hiding or destroying important documents.

Physical Abuse: Pushing, grabbing, punching, kicking, choking, stabbing, burning or shooting you; doesn't allow you to go to doctors or get medicine; using or threatening to use a weapon against you.

Sexual Abuse: Forces you to have sex or sexual acts with themselves or with others even if you are married.

What is Sexual Violence in the Workplace?

A supervisor tells or implies you must sleep or commit other sexual acts with them for you to keep your job, housing, and/or transportation.

A co-worker, supervisor, or employee pinches and fondles you against your will.

Several of your co-worker's post sexually explicit jokes and/or pornographic photos on the bulletin board in the break room.

You endure inappropriate or lewd comments of sexual nature from employer, supervisor, or co-worker.

You are sexually assaulted or raped by your employer, supervisor, or co-worker.

When an employer, supervisor, or co-worker talks about sex, fantasies, and tells stories about sex in the workplace.
